

CHAPTER 1

The story begins with Sirat Maharaja, who is searching for new land to develop a new state and construct a new palace. Sirat Maharaja proposed this new idea to Wok Perdana Menteri to accommodate their growing community. As a result, they both set out for their search. During their journey, they stumbled upon a land called Kuala Dua. Sirat Maharaja ordered Wok Perdana Menteri to flatten the hills and mountains and clear all the trees so that they could start their plans of expansion.

CHAPTER 2

Once they arrived at Kuala Dua, Wok Perdana Menteri began working on the land as ordered by Sirat Maharaja. While cutting down the trees, he stumbled upon a tree called Pohon Derdap Muda. Every time he swung his axe onto Pohon Derdap Muda, the tree would fall but come back up to its original position. Out of nowhere, he heard a voice coming from Pohon Derdap Muda which instructed him to stop trying to cut down the tree as he would be unsuccessful. Pohon Derdap Muda requested Wok Perdana Menteri to get the rightful ruler, Sirat Maharaja, to come down and cut down the tree himself. Wok Perdana Menteri rushed back to inform Sirat Maharaja about what had happened.

CHAPTER 3

When Wok Perdana Menteri returned from Kuala Dua, he informed Sirat Maharaja about the problem that he was facing with Pohon Derdap Muda. Wok Perdana Menteri brought Sirat Maharaja to Kuala Dua to show him the tree and let him cut it down as instructed. Sirat Maharaja took out a big sword and with one swing, Pohon Derdap Muda fell to the ground. After cutting down the tree, both Sirat Maharaja and Wok Perdana Menteri were shocked by what they saw—a lady named Puteri Madudari emerged from the fallen tree. Puteri Madudari questioned Sirat Maharaja's purpose in cutting down the trees and clearing the land. He replied that he wanted to build a new state and palace. Puteri Madudari told Sirat Maharaja that he could do as he wished— on one condition. Her condition was that Sirat Maharaja must marry the princess Madudari. After the wedding, Sirat Maharaja successfully built a new state for his followers as well as a new palace. His new state is called Negeri Kuala Dua, Derdap Muda, Tanah Pasir Mayang, Perbung Sari.

They all lived happily ever after together, united as a community in their new land. After some time, Puteri Madudari became pregnant and eventually gave birth, which is how the state was named and marks the end of the story of Hikayat Sirat Mahraja Membuka Negeri and Kelahiran Seri Rama.
